Course content/description

Students will be learning to express their views on films, music, tv programmes, books and other hobbies. They will also be learning cultural aspects of life in France through poems, songs, film clips, film studies and conversations with our French assistants every other week.

Our students will be consolidating their ICT skills in our languages laboratory through the use of various languages websites we subscribe to, and other activities incorporated in our schemes of work.

Citizenship is a very important part of our curriculum and is also incorporated in our lessons through cultural activities we cover all year, and our film study of "La Raffle" at the end of the year, when we look at the topic of the Holocaust which is also covered in History in Year 9, is only reinforcing this further.

From a grammatical point of view, our students will be learning more complex aspects of translating and grammar, as well as the imperfect and future tenses.

This year, some of our most exciting Year 9 projects include a French music project and a literature project on Christmas in the first term, followed by a "whodunnit" project in the Spring term.

Assessment

Students are assessed by their teachers every half term in at least one skill per module. An assessment timetable is in place to make sure that all 4 skills are assessed throughout the year on a rotation basis in order to prepare students efficiently for end of year examinations.

Speaking and writing skills are formally assessed 3 times a year, although students are also informally assessed by their teachers several times each term.

Books/other/materials/visits

We currently use "Expo 3" with Year 9 students, but despite following the modules content for themes and language, the scheme of work we follow could not be more inclusive of teaching and learning ideas, cultural activities and other fun, creative and stretching work.

Students are regularly taken to our languages laboratory to either work on languages websites we subscribe to or other materials we provide students.

All Year 9 French students have the opportunity to take part in the Year 9 French Exchange to experience life in France and to practise and extend their language skills.

What help can be given at home?

Checking planners for homework set once a week and overseeing that the homework is completed on the day it is set, as well as checking the exercise book for teacher's comments, targets and other messages is always very useful. Students must also be seen spending time learning vocabulary we cover each week, including spellings and pronunciation. Students can use the back of each module in their textbook to check vocabulary covered on each unit.
